

Why is the FCC even considering a proposal that may lessen the protection my family and I receive from Indiana's Telephone Privacy law?! Several thousand "Hoosiers" signed up for protection under this law to cease the constant, unwanted annoyance and harrassment caused by telemarketers on a daily basis. The law is working and I couldn't be happier!! But now, the FCC feels it must side with the telemarketers and not the consumers, the true VICTIMS, and lessen or even diminish the protection we receive. My family never got to eat a meal in peace before Indiana's Telephone Privacy law. Our telephone constantly rang and the only relief we got was to unplug the phone. That was an unfair and unacceptable position to be placed in. My family and I now enjoy peaceful dinners and evenings free from the telemarketers. If you believe in victims' rights at all, then please, please do not do anything that will lessen my family's protection from annoying and harrassing telemarketers. Thank you.
